100 witnesses have been called to Cheyenne by the prosecution at an average ost to the county of about $125. Some of the witnesses have already returned without having been put upon the witness stand and the taxpayers are properly indignant at the reckless methods of the prosecution. When it is remembered, however, that the prosecution is being pushed not so much by the state as by the vindictive friends and relatives of the deceased, who have employed private counsel who care nothing for expenses as long as they can put up a sensational case and break Crocker if they can't convict him, it is not hard to understand the recklessness of the prosecution.

Senator Clark arrived last night from Washington with his family after spending a few days with relatives and friends in Illinois and lowa. The senator's reception was in marked contrast with the reception given Senator Cannon and Representative Hariman at Butte. No brass band met him at the train nor did a vast concourse of his constituents great him with glad acciaim. It is thought by many of Senator Clark's hitherto warmest political friends that he has missed the opportunity of his life in not standing by Teller, Cannon and Dubcks on the silver question. ed a telegram last evening apprising him of the death of his son, Moroni Secrist, at Garden Creek, Idaho, yesterday afternoon. The cause of his death was not stated and no particulars have been received. Mr. Secrist received the message too late to take the train for the north, but he will go up tonight to bring the body home to Farmington for burial.

The deceased was a young man of good character, and wherever known he enjoyed the confidence and respect of his acquaintances. Two years ago ne married a Miss Barber of Centerville, and the couple went up into the Marsh Valley country to make a home. His death is a very sad blow to his young wife, who is left with two children, the youngest only three weeks old.

The announcement of the time of couple was holding funeral services has not yet op Wride.

The county court at its session last Monday adopted a resolution favoring the construction of the Weber canyon road on the north side of the river from the mouth of the canyon to Devil's Gate, provided the Union Pacific railway company, whose track narallels the proposed road, will consent to the change being made. This will necessitate the building of the new bridge across the river at the mouth of the canyon instead of at the former site near Devil's Gate. It has been agreed that in the event of the new road being made Weber county will bear one-third of the expense and the Davis and Weber Counties Canal company one-third, leaving the balance of the expense and the keeping of the road in repair to Davis county.

The contract for building massonry shuttments for the new iron bridge has been let to John Pignon, and after the place for building it has been located there will be no delay about its construction, and the re-opening of the canyon road.

The plan for the lynching was hatched at a bail game at Hilltop, the scene of the murder, yesterday afternoon. The lynching party met shortly before midnight. All were masked and about fifteen wore women's dresses. They awoke an old colored man, Washington Burch, who had charge of the jall. He made some show of resistance, but finally delivered the keys. Cocking was taken to the bridge 200 yards away, where a noose was placed around his neck. He was ordered to confess. He said he was innocent. He was directed to pray, but said he did not want to. The rope was made fast to the rail of the bridge, the murderer lifted to the rail and pushed off. He fell ten feet. The party dispersed leaving the body dangling.
